

Bibliography of modern sources related to the medieval port site of Siraf

The following bibliography provides a list of modern sources relating to medieval Persian Gulf port of Siraf at Tahiri in southern Iran. The list includes sources that refer primarily to the site or books, volumes, articles, theses and other works that include some original information about the site. Secondary references and comments based exclusively on original published material have been excluded. The list is complete to my knowledge, though additional published works may have been overlooked, particularly those published in Persian. Any suggested additions or comments on this list will always be gratefully received.
